Thanks for sending. My follow-up question is has any agency been out to verify the proposed stream typing in the report? Yes, they are correct on an Ns needing surface connection, but we'd want to verify that this is an Ns as Np doesn't need surface connection and if it an Ns we'd want to verify that there is a lack of surface connection. If this has happened (agency has reviewed), then they should submit a Water Type Modification to remove this stream. If it hasn't, then WDFW or another agency needs to review the stream.

Thanks,

Scott

Scott,

We can arrange a site visit if needed. They did address the stream channel (type N) in the report on page 4 saying it didn't qualify as a Type Ns as it does not connect to a higher order water by an above ground channel per KCC 17A.04.020 \(4\)\(d\) . Let me know if this changes any comments you may have. For reference, I have attached Grette's report.

Thanks.

Jeremiah,

In addition to the wetland and associated buffer, there is a mapped Type N near where the cabin was placed and where the proposed cargo container is to be placed. WDFW would like to have a site visit to assess the stream, its location and the placement of the cargo container and cabin in relation to the stream. The discussion should also include potential mitigation if either are within the riparian zone for the Type N stream.

Thanks for sending for review. Email or phone works well for them to arrange this visit. Depending on snow depth, it is possible we could do something in the winter, but if snow depth precludes seeing the stream then we need to wait until spring for the visit.

Scott
