Both measurements we took were from the center of the spinner to where we saw the last little bits of sand falling. The heavier part of the pattern was a few feet back closer to the truck from where we took our measurement. Some sand did bounce back a couple feet further than we measured but it did not bounce any higher than 8 inches I would say. We also measured back to 100' and there was no sand at all at this distance. We guessed this distance was about 5 full size four door long bed pickups for a reference to distance on the road.
