Hi, Jamey,

I am so sorry for this mix up. I know it has quite the ripple effect on you. Normally, we have no issues with releasing them, but our accounting department head was on vacation and we had an alt taking care of everything, and I was out sick yesterday, so it appears to be a perfect storm scenario.

I am working with accounting to have the credit hold removed from your account so this won't happen in the future. The credit hold happens when an account is overdue for payment, so it places all new ads on hold.

Sabrina, is there something that we can do differently in the future, these missed publications have a ripple effect on our projects. After we send over a response that we approve the legal we also mail out our notice of applications and in those are comment deadlines which we are required to provide a set number of days. It is a significant cost in some instances to recall a mailing and change dates and then re-send the notice for these projects. We are already crippled in our abilities to complete projects by having a paper that only publishes twice a week that are useable days for our publications so when we miss one its not just one day it is two or sometimes five. I get things happen but that is why I am looking for a solution to make this process work better in the future. For this one and any others that were missed yes please run the legal in the next available edition of the paper and we will work on our end to adjust the notices accordingly.

Thanks Jamey

Good morning, Zach,

I hope you had a good weekend.

I have a little bit of bad news. Our accounting team didn't release this legal notice to be published for today's paper. Is it alright if we put it in Thursday's?
