Ms. Stevie:

The Department of Health (DOH) Office of Drinking Water (ODW) has the following comments or questions:

- The application proposes a driveway to serve “multiple new single family homes” and then the SEPA checklist indicates water as “currently available at the site” – what is this source of water: an existing private well or wells or an existing public water system (Group B or Group A)?
- For water service for these new homes, the development is considered a “project” and water use needs to be considered as a “collective”, whether a series of private wells or a public water system. DOH suggests communicating with the State of Washington Department of Ecology regarding the definition of a “project” and water usage implications.

Depending on the responses to these comments, DOH ODW may have additional comments.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact DOH, thanks,
